

More Commissioners needed

I listened to the audio presentation of the Jackson County Commissioners staff meeting on Thursday, March 28, and toward the end of the meeting I heard something said by a commissioner that gave me pause to deliberate.

The commissioners were preparing to review their very full calendars when Commissioner (Colleen) Roberts said, "We're stuck with two commissioners, two weeks in a row."

The ensuing review of the calendars for the following week with the two commissioners, county administrator, and county counsel, all sound worked up as they strain to meet their obligations.

When one commissioner is unavailable, I am left to wonder how well is the county being represented with only two commissioners? Three commissioners is hard enough.

The obligations of the county commissioners is ever-growing and, I feel, the county would be better served and represented by having more commissioners to cover these growing obligations.
